Have you ever heard about flash mobs? By getting in touch with each other on the Internet, flash mobs do interesting things together. The leader, who makes the plans, will tell everybody in the group when they are going to meet and what they are going to do. They usually wear clothes of the same color and show up in a public place, like a train station, and do something unusual. Flash mobs stay in a place for only a few seconds and then leave.

Joining flash mobs is a way for people who meet on the Internet to do something creative and get to know each other at the same time. Some people find flash mobs annoying, but most people there are just trying to have some fun.

Do you know what a VTuber is? VTuber, stands for Virtual YouTuber, is like a magical online character who can talk, sing, and play games on the Internet. These special characters are not real people but animations which are controlled by real people.

VTubers use technology to create their virtual selves, and they can run a channel and talk with people all over the world. VTubers have many different types. Some are great at singing, some tell funny stories, and others play video games wonderfully. However, they all have something in common: you can interact with them online in livestream rooms.

Not like YouTubers who can have many kinds of topics to share, VTubers cannot go outside and take travel videos. Vlog is not possible to VTubers. They often focus on animations and online worlds.

What makes VTubers super fun is that they often have their own distinctive worlds and stories. It's like walking into the one and only magical land where anything can happen! So, if you ever want to have a good laugh, listen to great music, or watch exciting games, check out the surprising worlds of VTubers online!

Ang Lee is a famous movie director. He has won many important prizes. His works, like The Ice Storm and Life of Pi are successful movies that have been seen by people around the world.

Ang Lee was born in Pingtung, Taiwan. His father was a teacher, but he had little interest in studying. All that he wanted to do was to become a director. He studied drama in Taipei and movies in the USA. He got great grades, but he couldn't get any jobs for six years. During those years, his wife worked to raise the family. He stayed home, took care of their two children, and kept writing many screenplays. He tried hard to find every chance to make his screenplays public.

Because he never gave up, finally, he became a successful movie director. He has made many movies, and fourteen out of them are very, very successful. Now, he still works hard and hopes to create more wonderful movies to the world.
