Australia has been hit by bushfires since September of 2019. So much of the country has burned that the land lost can be compared to the size of South Korea. The situation in Australia is not unique, unfortunately. Countless countries had their own wildfires or bushfires in 2019.

Two of the world's biggest rainforests burned in 2019. In Brazil, the Amazon Rainforest burned for 9 months. In central Africa, the Congo Basin Forest had a higher number of fires than the Amazon. Over in Indonesia, they had more fires in the month of September than in all of 2018 combined. The summer fires in Siberia destroyed an area about the size of Belgium. Smoke from the fires reached Alaska and even parts of Canada.

Many scientists have pointed to global warming as the reason for all these fires. The temperature of the Earth has been rising steadily over the last few decades, and it's having a very clear impact on the planet and its people. Hopefully, we can try to stop hurting the Earth before it's too late.

We may not be able to travel to every country on Earth, but a great way to get a taste of a culture is to try its special dishes. One of the popular and weird dishes you shouldn't miss is fried guinea pigs. Here are some people's ideas on fried guinea pig.

Karen: People don't keep them as pets in Peru. They are a delicious dish. The dish is best served with potatoes and salsa. A traditional food, Guinea pig (called cuy in Peru), has been served whole on special days since Inca times. However, I am not brave enough to try.

Vincent: It tastes a little like chicken. It's delicious and I've been a fan ever since that first taste. I never miss an opportunity to try fried or roasted guinea pig.

Marco: Guinea pig is too scary to try. It is just like kangaroo in Australia. They are so cute that they should be pets not food. Although some animal groups don't agree to hunt kangaroos for meat, kangaroos are still served in multiple ways, from a simple steak to sausages or burgers in Australia.
